SUEZ ENVIRONNEMENT ACQUIRES TWO COMPANIES TO REINFORCE ITS DEVELOPMENT IN WATER FOR INDUSTRY

SUEZ ENVIRONNEMENT, via its subsidiary Degrémont, has acquired Poseidon, a Canadian company specialized in separation systems for industrial water treatment and B&V Group, a British company specialised in water treatment chemicals, equipment and services for industry.

These acquisitions are in line with SUEZ ENVIRONNEMENT's strategy to expand its industrial activity and reinforce its offer in innovative and value-added solutions for industrial clients around the globe.

Poseidon Inc. provides innovative and value-added systems for industry

Based in Canada, Poseidon is a full-service equipment supplier which designs and manufactures a range of state-of-the-art, compact separator systems by flotation for industrial water treatment¹. Poseidon's portfolio of proprietary technologies has long been at the forefront of wastewater and process water treatment with solutions spanning numerous industrial sectors, most notably in Oil & Gas, Pulp & Paper and Food & Beverage.

B&V Group to develop further conditioning services internationally

Based in the UK, B&V manufactures and commercialises conditioning products and technical services for water related infrastructures including cooling circuits, boiler systems and effluent treatment. The company also supplies equipment, tailor-made engineering and services linked to legionella risks and microbial control problems. B&V has strong positions with Facilities Management in Healthcare, Food & Beverage, Petrochemical and Power industries.

They complete the acquisitions done in 2013 of IWM² acquired from BASF in France, of Process Group in 2014 as well as the share purchase of Evatherm.

"We are delighted that these two companies joined SUEZ ENVIRONNEMENT. It will further contribute to our position on the industrial water market, one of the Group's four strategic priorities" says Marie-Ange Debon, Deputy Chief Executive Officer in charge of International activities for SUEZ ENVIRONNEMENT.

DEGREMONT
